The past year the dahlia had a hard fight for existence. Their sturdy growth was handicapped by the excessive rains. In our effort to give them a good location we made an error and as a result the continued rainy season caused a loss of a large part of our stock and the complete loss of some varieties. Therefore we only list a few of the varieties which were fortunate enough in location to withstand the water and come through with a good tuber growth.

Dahlia tubers will not be delivered until planting time.

Terms same as Gladiolus.
